

The Writer's Moon Mantra

I write from the pulse of excitement—
a spark that wakes when the moon calls my name.
Through every word, I remember: love wins.

The character, is my light, my mirror.
In her, I see the part of myself
that believes goodness can still heal the world.
She gives, she loves, she restores—
and through her, I remember what purity feels like.

This story is my offering:
a tale of deliverance from evil,
a hymn to the quiet tenderness
that changes everything it touches.

I am building a world where love conquers darkness—
not by force, but by grace,
not through power, but through care.

When doubt whispers, I will look to the moon
and remember why I began:

to show that even in the fiercest night,
the light of love still rises.

— Written by TeeGate, under the glow of the Wolf Moon 🐺💕